PROFESSIONAL SUMMARY

I am a recent student at University of California, Irvine that studied full stack development through a weeknight bootcamp. In the duration of my bootcamp experience, I have developed a sense of what is required in the fast paced environment that this role would be in. I am passionate for the industry and know I can excel and adapt to new technologies. I collaborate well with my peers, exemplify quick learning capabilities, and have a comprehensive set of skills to execute any tasks at hand.

RELEVANT EXPERIENCE

As a Bootcamp student I have worked on projects such as,

- A sales map that allows a business to upload their CRM and then was able to view pinpoints of where they are succeeding versus where they can focus on marketing more.
- A cartoon-like video game that you are able to collect stars for points, defeat enemies, and then advance levels to score the maximum points and compete amongst other players.
- A movie journal that allows a user to find their favorite movies and log them in a virtual journal with their own reviews.
- Build a React application that allows me to showcase my skills, projects, and gives an employer information about me.
